

The Formentera Council's language consultancy department will once again offer Catalan language courses for adults.

All those interested can register from February 28 to March 9 at the Citizen Information Office (OAC, at carrer Ramon Llull, 6). Classes begin March 12 and will continue until May, coinciding with the official exams coordinated by the directorate general of language policies.

The latest round of Catalan language instruction picks up where a similar course from October 2017-January 2018 left off. Council officials say the classes reflect the administration's goal of facilitating and promoting language study on the island. Efforts are made —scheduling lessons across a variety of days and hours, for example— to make it easier for students juggling employment or parenting as well.

Enrolment in the courses is free and plans are in place to organise two groups each at the A2, B1 and B2 levels and one group for students in the most advanced level, C1/C2. For more information, contact: sal@conselldeformentera.cat