

The Formentera Department of Environment is pleased to announce the beginning of a period of public consultation around plans to equip Estany des Peix with floating pontoons and low-impact anchorage points. Procurement proceeding rules mandate collection of comments during a 15-day period of public consultation, published from today in the Official Gazette of the Balearic Islands (BOIB).

Environment chief Antonio J. Sanz described the change as “another clear step toward regulation” and insisted the island’s government remained “committed to enacting a regulatory system during the current legislative term”.

The final plans are available on the BOIB website and at the FDE and Formentera Department of Inspection Services on Carrer Mallorca in Sant Ferran.

Tragsatec was contracted to prepare the final design set. The bid cost was €1,259,204.18. To execute the designs, the Consell de Formentera has a €652,154 subsidy with funds from the Sustainable Tourism Tax (ITS).
