

Yesterday marked the end of the tenth edition of a course on social and cultural integration. Eleven students successfully completed the twenty-hour course.

□ The classes are mainly geared towards immigrants, particularly those wishing to renew their residence permit, prepare for the CCSE citizenship test or demonstrate integration during the early phases of their stay in Spain. Topics covered included Spain's constitutional values, human rights and civil liberties, the Balearic Statute of Autonomy, the European Union and gender equality, among others. The course is designed to familiarise students with the various subjects and help them obtain the associated accreditation.
